Examples of the Threat

National Intellectual Property Rights Coordination Center

Counterfeit goods come in many different shapes and sizes. The terms “counterfeit” or “knock off” often evoke images of DVDs or luxury retail items like handbags, watches, shoes. In reality, criminals are counterfeiting items that go beyond these goods, and are potentially harmful to your health and safety. A few examples of these counterfeit items are listed below:

- Airbags
- Batteries
- Outlet Strips
- Integrated Circuits
- Fire Extinguishers
- Cell Phone Covers

Legitimate vs. Illegitimate Websites

- The counterfeit threat is magnified by the creation of “counterfeit sites” made to look very close, or sometimes even identical, to legitimate retailers’ sites.
 - Use caution when searching through popular search engines. There are often instances in which the counterfeit site appears before the legitimate site in a search.
 - There is often no legal recourse for broken or tainted goods ordered through counterfeit sites.
- Exercise: Compare the websites provided on the next two slides and identify which you think is the “real” versus “fake” site.

Mitigating the Threat

Best Practices

Although there is no foolproof way to prevent counterfeit purchases, there are a number of steps that acquisition professionals can take to help mitigate the chances of purchasing legitimate goods.

- ❏ Be suspicious of deals that seem too good to be true. If it seems too good to be true, it probably is.
- ❏ Protect your personal details. Never give away personal information unnecessarily and do not reveal passwords or pins.
- ❏ Know who you are dealing with. Check the manufacturer's website to identify authorized retailers.
- ❏ Be suspicious of websites that do not provide contact information.

Mitigating the Threat

Best Practices

- ❏ Beware of unsolicited or spam email offers.
- ❏ Be careful how you pay. Buy goods online through secure and encrypted payment systems, don't be drawn off the site to other forms of payments, and consider separate credit cards or accounts for online shopping.
- ❏ Be cautious of websites with:
 - ❏ inaccurate grammar, misspellings, punctuation errors, and nonsensical sentences throughout its site;
 - ❏ FAQ sections explaining a company's policies for customs seizures;
 - ❏ terms such as replica, knockoff or "cheap" in its name or advertising; and
 - ❏ discounted prices which are further discounted if purchased in bulk.

Even if none of these indicators is present, you may still be looking at counterfeit products and/or sites. Always know your retailer.
